

BIG 4 EXPRESS HOPES FOR PARLEY SUCCESS

Probe Crash of Airliner; 22 Killed; 22 Hurt

Flames Quickly Extinguished to Save Many Lives

CHICAGO (UP)—A coroner's jury today investigated an apparently normal instrument landing of a Braniff Airways Convair plane that crashed Sunday and killed 22 persons and injured 22 others.

It was one of Chicago's worst plane crashes.

The two-engine airliner roared out of a fogged and smoke-hazy sky on a flight that started at Dallas, Tex., and clipped a filling station electric sign. The impact shot the plane into a street bordering Midway Airport, through a fence and sent it bouncing in pieces into the airport. The wreckage caught fire, but flames were put out quickly which saved many from death.

There was no indication of any trouble prior to the crash. Preliminary investigations showed the plane was making a normal instrument landing according to schedule.

The inquest to investigate the crash was called by Cook County Coroner Walter J. McCarron for today.

All but one of the dead and injured was aboard the plane. The exception is Mrs. Sara Ellis, 39, Chicago, who was thrown from an automobile by the force of the crash as the vehicle waited in the street for a traffic light. She was treated for cuts and bruises in a hospital.

Captain, Stewardess Killed

Her husband, Waverly, clung to the steering wheel and was not hurt.

It seemed like an explosion," Ellis said later. "I heard the noise and at the same time all the car doors flew open and my wife flew out. I picked her up and drove to the hospital."

Among the dead were the plane's captain, Allen Tobin, and the stewardess, Mary Teel, both of Dallas, Tex. Co-pilot O. W. Hanks, also of Dallas, was injured critically.

Twelve of the injured were in serious condition.

The injured included two sisters whose mother was killed in the crash. The girls are Nancy Borneman, 6, and Janet Borneman, 11, La Grange Park, Ill. The body of their mother, Mrs. Henrietta Borneman, was found lying near the wreckage by her husband George, 40, who was waiting for his family to return from a visit to Austin, Tex.

Borneman was at the loading gate at the passenger terminal when he said some one yelled "the plane has crashed."

"I ran out and grabbed a taxi," he said, "and was driven to the corner of 55th Street and Central Avenue. There was a big hole in the fence and I walked thru. The plane was smashed to bits and still smoking."

Airman on Furlough Killed

"I was looking for my wife and found her body some distance from the cabin. She was dead."

Janet told her father later that she and her sister were sitting alone at the mother's side.

"The stewardess told us on the loudspeaker that the flight was over and we were landing. She wished us 'a nice trip.' Then we circled and I was dozing."

"There was a big crash. My seat belt held me in. The seat with me in it went flying and I landed upside down with my left leg jammed. It was awfully quiet after the crash."

Another of the dead was airman I. C. Laurence Stuart on emergency furlough to visit his wife who was expecting a baby.

Quick work by airport firemen was credited by authorities with preventing a higher loss of life. They quickly snuffed out a fire that broke out.

Many of the dead and injured were trapped in the wreckage. It took rescue crews about 2 1/2 hours to remove all the victims.

Dedicate Marker on Ozark Trail In Memory of Late L. O. Trigg

Ceremony Held
During First Stop
Of 25th Annual Tour

A marker on Trigg Memorial Ozark Trail was dedicated Sunday afternoon as the first stop in the 25th annual Ozark tour.

The dedication was in memory of the late L. O. Trigg, who was publisher of the Eldorado Daily Journal, and who spent a great portion of his time in publicizing the natural beauties and wonders of southern Illinois.

More than 100 persons, including members of the 25th annual tour were present at the dedication of the marker on the highway near the site of Mr. Trigg's birthplace and the place where he first set up a printing shop.

Curtis Small, editor of The Daily Register, one of the tour veterans and a friend of the Trigg family, was the dedication speaker.

He reviewed briefly the beginning of the Trigg tours and described Mr. Trigg, who was called Colonel by members of the tour, as a man who did not aspire to fame or wealth, but was content to apply himself to his vocation as a printer and publisher, a man who loved his native Ozark area and wanted to share that love with others.

Geoffrey Hughes, executive secretary of Southern Illinois Inc., was master of ceremonies of the event. The program included singing of "America" directed by John Schork of Harrisburg, introduction of veteran Ozark tour members by L. E. "Buck" Sawyer, Indiana Coal Strippers Association, Division of Forestry, the introduction of other guests and the dedication address.

The marker, covered in newspaper, symbolic of Mr. Trigg's vocation, was unveiled by Miss Beth Ann Tierney, of Eldorado, assisted by her grandfather, Kenneth Trigg, present publisher of the Journal.

Two Runs by Fire Dep't

The fire department made two runs over the week end. At 7:30 p. m. Saturday the truck was called to the home of Fred Nagel, 311 West Lincoln, where the house had filled with smoke. Cause was undetermined. At 6:35 p. m. Sunday a run was made to the home of W. R. "Pat" Atkinson, where clothing of Mrs. Atkinson caught fire in a clothes closet. The Atkinsons live at 1425 South Land street.

Wilson Discloses Another Division to Return from Asia

TOKYO (UP)—The U. S. Army is withdrawing from Asia, leaving the defense of the anti-Communist nations to American atomic bombers and untried Asian armies, it was indicated today.

U. S. Defense Secretary Charles Wilson's disclosure that another Army division would be brought home from Asia in the current fiscal year, coupled with his rejection of the appeal of former Army Chief of Staff Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway against further ground force cuts, cemented the trend in U. S. policy planning.

The Army withdrawal is not being matched by buildup of U. S. air or naval forces based in the Far East.

The planners are counting on rapid reinforcement from U. S. continental bases in an emergency. "But when the whistle blows," one high officer recently admitted, "we're likely to find this is a secondary theater and the reinforcements can't be spared."

J. Ward Barnes Heads Red Cross

J. Ward Barnes, assistant principal at the Eldorado Township high school, is the newly elected chairman of the Saline County chapter of the American Red Cross.

Mr. Barnes was elected to head the county Red Cross organization at its annual meeting held in Ellett, Eldorado business man.

Other officers of the chapter are Alfred Adams, Eldorado, vice chairman; Mrs. Kenneth Capel, Harrisburg, secretary; Herman Lambert, Harrisburg, treasurer. Mrs. Capel and Mr. Lambert were re-elected to their respective offices.

The meeting was held in the educational building of the First Methodist church of Eldorado and opened with a dinner, served by the women of the church.

Soviet Farm Group Complains Of Newsmen

Leader Fires
Barbed Comments
At Photographers

DES MOINES, Iowa (UP)—Twelve Russian farmers kept smiling today but made it plain they were more than a little upset by the flock of newsmen and photographers tagging along on their tour of Iowa's tall-corn country.

"Because of the lenses, we can't see the cows," complained delegation leader Vladimir Matskevich, although he kept smiling while he said it.

The Russians, accompanied by more than 100 American newsmen and photographers, toured the 160-acre farm of Richard Allemen near Slater, Iowa, north of here.

Their main purpose was to learn how America builds up huge food surpluses while Soviet production lags.

The Russians expressed keen interest in Allemen's farm and jotted down copious notes. But Matskevich kept firing a series of barbed comments in the direction of newsmen and photographers.

He was asked if he would like to ask Allemen, a 25-year-old Army veteran, any questions. Matskevich replied, "I'll ask after the photographers get through snapping."

He then turned to Allemen and asked how he felt about this "invasion." Allemen, who served with the Army in Alaska, replied it didn't bother him a bit. Matskevich thought that over and then commented, "If they (the newsmen) break the fences, they should be kept afterward to fix them up."

Then Matskevich told Allemen, "We are very happy for the warm welcome and now we ask you to show us everything about the farm." He added, "we have seen all the cameramen and microphones, now we would like to discuss the farm situation."

Cordial Welcome

The Russians climbed about a tractor-drawn flat bed wagon for a tour of the farm. Glancing back at a second wagon for the newsmen, Matskevich commented, "I hope the second wagon will break down."

The Soviet farmers went to the Allemen farm after an enthusiastic welcome by Iowa residents and officials upon their arrival Sunday night.

Sunday night's cordial welcome was in direct contrast to the booging given by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov when he passed through the Midwest recently on the way to the tenth anniversary celebration of the United Nations in San Francisco.

A crowd estimated at 2,700 persons waved and applauded the Russians as they arrived here by plane in ill-fitting suits but wearing broad smiles.

A sign with "Welcome" spelled out in Russian drew the biggest laughter from the Soviet delegation. The sign-bearer was Charlotte Graves, Des Moines, a young, pretty Russian major at Bryn Mawr (Pa.) College.

Vladimir Matskevich, balding chief of the delegation and first deputy minister of Russian agriculture, beamed and waved.

In a five-minute speech, he was "happy" to be making the trip.

Open Bids Tonight To Rebuild Junior Hi

Bids for reconstruction of the section of the Harrisburg Junior High school, destroyed by fire Jan. 1, will be opened at the meeting of the District 43 school board at 7:30 tonight.

The building is to be reconstructed from proceeds of the insurance plan funds derived from an $87,500 bond issue.

The public is invited to the bid opening, to be held at the Junior High school.

It is not anticipated action will be taken on the bids tonight, since the board has 30 days in which to study the bids and to prepare the contracts for the best bidders, providing the bids are within the range of the amounts of funds available for the construction.

Evangelist Billy Graham Expresses Hope of World In Peace and Faith in God

Editor's Note: In the following special dispatch written for the United Press, American evangelist Billy Graham tells his private meditations and hopes for success of the Big Four summit parley.

By BILLY GRAHAM
Written For United Press

GENEVA (UP)—Today a little boy stood out in front of our hotel watching the people come and go. Then I noticed he glanced up at the four flags hanging in front, the American, British, French and Russian.

His eyes seemed to be filled with wonderment, excitement and a certain amount of bewilderment. To me he seemed to symbolize future generations whose destiny hangs in the balance during the next few days.

I have four little children and the type of world they live in may be decided right here in Geneva this week.

Millions of eyes are focused on this resort city. They represent all races, tongues and creeds. The weather is hot, the hotels are jammed. Beautiful Lake Geneva is filled with sailboats.

But the topic of conversation is, "Will this conference increase the possibilities of war or peace?"

As we have been driven several times by the Metropole Hotel where the Russian delegation is staying, we could not help but wonder what was going on in those well-guarded conference rooms. They are all smiles.

A Genuine Change

Many feel that a genuine change is taking place in Russian foreign policy.

But the world has been deceived so many times that it is waiting with bated breath for proof.

As I have talked to diplomats and newspapermen from various countries, there is caution on the one hand and optimism on the other.

There is no doubt about it, that there is an unprecedented worldwide hunger for peace.

Never before in history has the cry been so universal. The last words of warning of Professor Einstein will not be forgotten at this conference.

Certainly these four delegations must realize that the overwhelming majority of the human race longs for peace. We do not want peace at any price.

There are still some things worth dying for, but if we can get peace without infringing on our conscience and without selling our souls we desperately want it.

These four delegations must also realize that weapons are poised and ready on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

Special Awards For Outstanding Carrier Boys

Again this year the Inland Daily Press Association has announced that they will make circulation awards to the outstanding carrier-salesmen of newspapers who are members of their Association. The Harrisburg Daily Register is a member of this organization and will, therefore, have privilege of making special awards to its outstanding carrier-salesmen.

These special awards will be in the form of certificates printed in three colors—red, gold and black—and will bear the Inland Daily Press Association seal. Each award will be signed by an officer of the Inland Daily Press Association, and the publisher and circulation manager of The Harrisburg Daily Register.

In addition to the certificates, each carrier-salesman selected for the awards will receive a "Gold Plate Pin" lapel-button size, inscribed with "Inland Daily Press Association Outstanding Newspaperboy." These pins have a safety catch so they may be worn on jackets, sweaters, shirts or suit coats. The lettering will be in two colors in hard-fired enamel.

Three carrier-salesmen of The Harrisburg Daily Register will be selected for these awards, with the presentations to be made during National Newspaper Boy Week, the first week in October.

Award winners will be judged on the following standards:

1. Service Record—satisfactory service to subscribers.
2. Salesmanship—sales effort in production of new business toward maximum subscriber coverage.
3. Collection and Account Records—prompt collections from subscribers and prompt payment of bill.
4. Scholastic Record—above average standing.

Award winners must have at least six months' continuous service in their route business prior to Oct. 1, 1955, and must be carrier-salesmen at the time of presentation of awards.

Curtain that could virtually wipe out civilization.

There have been hundreds of peace conferences in history. Nearly all have eventually ended in disillusionment and failure. We could name the Versailles peace conference, the Kellogg peace pact or Yalta and Potsdam.

Can we have permanent peace? I doubt it until Christ comes again. These conferences are built on the frailty of human nature.

History proves that pride, greed, ambition and lust for power dominate.

Only a radical change in human nature can give any permanence to world conditions. We cannot build a better world until we have a better man.

Christ came to make better men. Thus it becomes the patriotic responsibility of every world citizen to turn to him for regeneration.

It is certainly possible to have an era of peace and prosperity. Let us hope and pray God will give us at least a long respite from tension and war.

Let us pray that the little boy outside my hotel, and all others like him, will grow up in a world filled with peace, prosperity, security and faith in God.

Humphrey Sees Tax Cuts When Arms Reduced

By United Press

Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey gave Congress hope today that taxes some time could be cut substantially—when and if the world powers agree to a major armaments reduction.

Humphrey made no mention specifically to the current Big Four conference at Geneva, where President Eisenhower today called for a halt in the arms race.

He said, however, that he is confident that the great powers will eventually agree to such a proposal. That will make possible heavy cuts in taxes and the national debt.

He made the statement in testimony before a House Government Operations subcommittee.

Tax Write-Offs: Humphrey urged a sharp reduction in the program of rapid tax write-offs for industrial construction which Congress approved during the Korean war to boost defense plant construction.

Highways: Speaker Sam Rayburn threw his support to a Democratic plan to finance a multi-billion dollar highway program with increased taxes on gasoline and tires. He said he is "violently opposed" to President Eisenhower's plan to pay for the highways with a bond issue.

Minimum Wages: The House Rules committee cleared the way for House action on a bill to raise the federal minimum wage from 75 cents to a dollar an hour.

Air Academy: The Air Force showed the Senate Military Appropriations subcommittee revised designs for its new academy buildings. The original designs stirred an angry controversy on capitol hill.

Congressional Cooperation: The White House explained the cause for President Eisenhower's thanks to congressional leaders for their "generous cooperation" on his trip to the Geneva conference. The leaders agreed to hold up action on non-vital legislation until he comes back.

Social Security: Democrats planned to ram through the House a bill to liberalize Social Security benefits and raise social security taxes. It would add more than one million persons to the benefit rolls but would levy more than $1,500,000,000 a year in additional payroll taxes on jobholders and employers.

Willard Bramlet, 55, Prominent Farmer, Dies

Willard Bramlet, 55, prominent farmer residing on Harrisburg RFD 5 west of Wason, died today at 10:15 a. m. in the Ferrell hospital where he had been only five minutes. He had been in failing health for some time but death came unexpectedly.

Mr. Bramlet was a member of Union Grove Baptist church and at one time served on the board of directors for the Farm Bureau.

Surviving are his wife, Flora; one son, Lowell, at home; a brother, Bob Bramlet of California, and three sisters, Mrs. Grace Reed, Harrisburg, Mrs. Meriam Green, Marion, and Mrs. Marguerite Patterson, Tucson, Ariz.

The body is now at the Bean and Tanner funeral home and will lie in state there after 7 p. m. today.

Funeral plans will be announced later.

8-Point Plan Is Outlined By Eisenhower

Bulgarian Climaxes
Day of Cordiality
In Opening Talks

GENEVA (UP)—Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin joined the Western Big Three heads of governments today in declaring Russia's intention to do everything possible to make the Geneva summit conference a success.

President Eisenhower, who listened attentively to Bulganin's address closing the opening day's conference at the summit, expressed his satisfaction with the seemingly determined attitude of all delegations present to "work for an honest pursuit of peace."

President Eisenhower had opened the conference seven and a half hours earlier with a challenge to Russia to agree to a free, united Germany and to controlled disarmament which would guarantee against "frightful surprises" in this atomic age.

The President laid down an eight-point program for world peace.

Bulganin climaxed the day of hopeful and optimistic statements and of a cordiality unmatched since World War II by assuring the other government chiefs that Russia will do "all it can to justify the hopes of all peoples waiting for a tranquil and peaceful life."

Reply to Eisenhower Invitation
The President's "hold a different point of view from the West on some questions."

"But this," he said, "should not prevent the conference from succeeding in its work."

Bulganin said it was his government's "sincere wish" that this conference should be "a fruitful one."

It apparently was the Soviets' answer to President Eisenhower's invitation to the Kremlin to take a "new road" to peace with the West.

Mr. Eisenhower, chairman of the opening day's meetings, arose after Bulganin had concluded his speech.

"I have noted with the greatest satisfaction that the spirit of a friendly attitude has expressed itself as determined to work cooperatively with the others in an honest pursuit of peace," he said.

President Eisenhower set the tone for the day's lead-off speeches by delegation heads.

The President's speech, while challenging, was far from pessimistic. And the eight-point program he proposed for a Cold War armistice was in keeping with the cordial atmosphere in which this first top-level conference since Potsdam's disappointments opened in the Palace of Nations.

Mr. Eisenhower, keynoting the conference, called for a "new spirit." He frankly challenged Russia to "improve the international climate" by cooperating with the West in a workable program of disarmament and the use of atomic energy "for constructive purposes."

The American chief executive spoke with obviously deep conviction and sincerity.

Although couched in grave

Millions Attend Church in Response To Eisenhower Plea

By United Press

Millions of Americans attended weekday church services today in response to President Eisenhower's request that they ask God to be the greatest power at the Big Four "summit" meeting in Geneva.

They followed the example of millions of others who gathered to worship Sunday at special conference eve services in cathedrals, on warships at sea, at Army posts and even in a drive-in movie theatre.

Before Mr. Eisenhower left for Geneva for the conferences aimed at ending the Cold War, he expressed the hope that all 160 million Americans would go to church and pray for peace.

His appeal was relayed by the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A. to all its member congregations.

The President, far from home and from the people who elected him, sought the guidance of God in an American church at Geneva. He attended services in the Little Emanuel Church of Geneva's American community and heard a minister warn against "flabby surrender."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says:
U. S. Experts On Far East Waiting In Paris Against Chance Eisenhower May Need Them In Geneva; Dulles Has Tutor's Pride In Ike's Knowledge Of Foreign Affairs;
State Secretary Optimistic
Over 'Summit' Meeting.

GENEVA.—When President Eisenhower met with congressional leaders in Washington just before hopping off for the "Summit," he gave categorical assurances that he would not discuss the Far East with Premier Bulganin. He told congressional leaders it would not be fair to Nationalist China and other Asiatic nations which would not be present.

However, hidden in secret quarters just outside Paris are 15 of the State Department's top experts on Asia and Africa. They were sent just in case Ike had to yield to the Russians and discuss Far Eastern problems.

One reason for sending these 15 experts is a private warning received from the Red Chinese via the Indian government that Communist China will begin its long-expected attack on the offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu immediately after the Geneva conference—unless the United States agrees to meet with Premier Chou En-Lai to discuss problems of the Far East.

The Communist Chinese threat, of course, amounts to diplomatic blackmail. However, U. S. intelligence has checked the friendly message sent by the Indian government and finds it is all too true. The Chinese are not bluffing. They have built up long-range artillery and excellent air bases just opposite the offshore islands and are prepared to make mincemeat of them.

So Eisenhower advisers suggest it might be better to sit down with the Chinese in advance rather than risk a dangerous war around Formosa. Also, it's certain that despite Eisenhower's pledges to Senator Knowland, et al, the Far East will be discussed at Geneva.

DULLES' OPTIMISM
John Foster Dulles, who lives at the villa of Mrs. Louise Worthington Boethe, just two minutes' drive from Ike's ornate villa on Lake Geneva, is watching the President like a cat nubs a lone kitten. He wants no flub to mar the united front, such as his and Ike's recently contrary statements that Russia was weak and Russia was strong.

Dulles speaks with private pride about the President, the pride of a tutor who has trained a young chance in foreign affairs. His described the President as exuding optimism. "He feels it in his viscera," says the learned secretary of state, "Viscera," translated to everyday language, of course, means "gut."

There is no doubt that Eisenhower has felt increasingly optimistic about his ability to talk, charm, negotiate Bulganin into something akin to easing up the cold war.

And Foster Dulles, who one month ago was quite glum about accomplishment at the "Summit," now is singing a much more optimistic tune.

MOLOTOV'S CHANGE
Chief reason for Dulles' change was his San Francisco talks with crusty old Foreign Minister Molotov, who in San Francisco wasn't crusty at all. Molotov seemed almost pathetically eager to come to an understanding with the United States. He talked of nothing but the absolute necessity of getting along as a real friend with the United States.

"I am getting along in years," Dulles quoted Molotov as saying,
"and my one great ambition before I retire is to make it possible for Russia and the United States to restore their once great friendship."

Molotov promised Dulles to use his influence on Red China to keep peace in the Far East and even agreed to consider a plan to have Russia to join the western European union as one big defense community.

Dulles came to the conclusion,
and has so reported to his associates at Geneva, that the Kremlin leaders are worried over their own precarious internal situation and are willing to make concessions. He also advised that the West might well wait; for Russian willingness to compromise might increase as her economic troubles increased.

OTHER ADVISERS DIFFER
The Dulles view, however, is a long way from being shared by other Eisenhower advisers. Some differ with him vigorously. Here are the differing groups of advisers around the President as he begins his first session at the summit:

Group No. 1.—Are political advisers, worried sick for fear the President may pull another Yalta.
They remember all too vividly what they themselves did to Franklin Roosevelt after publication of the Yalta papers; and they fear the Democrats might do the same thing to Ike if he flubs at Geneva.

Especially they are worried if he gives any concession to the Russians. That's why Dulles, despite his optimism, has told congressmen privately that the American benefits from the Geneva talks will not be apparent for two years, while the benefits to Russia might be apparent immediately.

Group No. 2.—Are military advisers who have warned Eisenhower repeatedly that Russia is not weak; that from a military point of view she is ahead of the USA in many weapons. This group also includes U. S. intelligence experts.

They are worried that the President, who, like Roosevelt, has confidence in his own ability to win people, may become too trusting, may fall for Bulganin's charms.
They are keeping their fingers crossed, don't believe the Russians can possibly be willing to negotiate any genuine agreements.

Those are the men around Ike who, you can rest assured, are not going to let him get too far

Mother on Hunger Strike Since Son's Induction

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A devout housewife declaring she intends to fast "unto death" today entered the third full day of her hunger strike protesting the drafting of her only child.

Slender, dark-haired Mrs. Martha Blumenbach, 52, was reported weak but still determined to fulfill a "pact between myself and God"
as a result of the induction of her 26-year-old dentist son.

Her husband, Earl Blumenbach, a well-to-do businessman, said his wife had consumed nothing but a little water since 5:30 p. m. Friday, the day their son, Dr. Thomas E.
Blumenbach, was drafted.

She did not feel strong enough to attend church Sunday and spent most of the day resting, he said, but was in good condition under the circumstances. She is a member of the Unity Church.

Mrs. Blumenbach said she would try to attend her usual duties about their large home in an exclusive residential area of Coral Gables, Fla., while fulfilling her
"pact" to starve "unto death."

She said her father committed suicide in protest against the entry of his eldest son in military service during World War I and that she made her pact when the draft law of 1948 was enacted.

The father and son, both deeply religious, indicated they sympathize with her motive but the elder Blumenbach said "The whole thing is very upsetting—I'd rather not talk about it."

Polio Patient Gives Birth Under Hypnosis

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—A 32-year-old woman who gave birth to a baby boy under hypnosis while critically ill with polio showed much improvement today.

Doctors said the mother, Mrs.
Edward J. Schwartz of Dallas, still was critically ill. But they said she showed an immediate improvement as soon as the baby was delivered Sunday, a month early.

Doctors said the baby was "very healthy." Nurses said the baby is "stout-lunged," and "howled for a bottle" Sunday not too many hours after his birth.

The delivery of the baby was made by a staff of experts from the University of Texas' Southwestern Medical School here. A psychiatrist performed the hypnosis for the delivery.

"Now we have four sons," Mrs.
Schwartz beamed, as she spoke her first words after the delivery.
Later she told her husband, a jewelry salesman, that it was the most painless childbirth of the four she had known.

Doctors said that "as far as we know" Mrs. Schwartz was the first polio patient ever to deliver a baby under hypnosis.

Mrs. Schwartz was eight months pregnant when she was stricken with paralytic spinal polio last Tuesday. Since then, she has been in critical condition and had much difficulty in breathing.

Doctors said pressure of the unborn child against her chest area made breathing almost impossible.
They induced her labor with drugs and delivered the baby with instruments.

An immediate improvement in her breathing was noted after the birth, doctors said.

By RALPH OLSON
Written for United Press

MOSCOW (AP)—So far our food has been good and plentiful, but of course not what we'd eat at home. We've had lots of fish, but not one of us has found a steak.

Why, this bunch of 12 farm people out for dinner anywhere else would all have had steaks for dinner. The fish was good, though—breaded whitehead chicken filet. And a novelty for us was the tea, the best I have ever drunk.

Dodgers Unwrap Two Rookie Pitchers, Beat Reds Twice; Yankees' Lead Dwindles

By United Press
It was 92.8 degrees on the mound at Ebbets Field but it was like Christmas morning in the Brooklyn Dodgers' dugout when Manager Walter Alton unwrapped rookie pitchers Roger Craig and Don Bessent.

Thrown into action shortly after their arrivals from Montreal and St. Paul, the two 24-year-old right-handers came through with splendid major league debuts that enabled the Dodgers to whip the Cincinnati Redlegs, 6-2 and 8-5. Their performances not only helped the Dodgers maintain their 12-1-2 game lead but gave Alton's sore-arm plagued staff a dramatic respite.

When Alton finally put in the emergency call to General Manager Buzz Bavasi for mound help from the minors, the Dodgers' staff had dwindled to three able-bodied performers and their National League rivals were beginning to hope they could yet be overhauled.

Craig, a native of Durham, N. C., who had a 10-2 record at Montreal, turned in a glittering three-hitter in the opener backed by an attack that included Duke Snider's 31st homer in addition to circuit blows by Gil Hodges, Carl Furillo and Pee-wee Reese. Craig walked five batters but he struck out six, yielded only one earned run and didn't permit a hit after the second inning.

Bessent, who hails from Jacksonville, Fla., and had a 6-3 mark for St. Paul, pitched six-hit ball for eight innings before he tired and Ed Roebuck was summoned from the bullpen to lock things up. The Dodgers had scored six runs with the aid of three Cincinnati errors in the fourth inning and added another pair in the seventh before the Redlegs started to hit Bessent.

The American league race, meanwhile, continued to tighten up when the Chicago White Sox drubbed the Baltimore Orioles, 3-2 and 5-4, and moved to within a game and a half of the first-place New York Yankees.

The White Sox now have won seven straight games—equaling the longest winning streaks of the year in the American league.

The Yankees dropped their ninth decision in 13 games when Earl Torgerson stole home while Bob Turley slept to give the Detroit Tigers a 6-5, 10-inning triumph. The Cleveland Indians beat the Boston Red Sox, 6-5, after losing the opener, 6-0, so the White Sox picked up ground on all three contenders. Frank Shea pitched a three-hitter in his first start of the season to give the Washington Senators a 4-0 win over the Kansas City Athletics in the other American league contest.

Billy Pierce pitched a four-hitter for his sixth win and Dick Donovan won his 12th game on Walt Dropo's eighth-inning homer as the White Sox made it four one-run victories in a row. Pierce's earned run average dipped to 1.93 while Donovan's 12-2 mark is the best in the A. L.

Torgerson's theft of home at the expense of reliever Bob Turley came with two out in the 10th after Ray Boone's two-run eighth-inning homer produced a 5-5 tie. Bucky Harris' Tigers thus swept the three-game set and gave the Yankees a 1-4 record on their current rocky road trip.

Red Sox-Indians Split
Tom Brewer's three-hitter for his sixth straight and seventh win of the year gave the Red Sox the opener easily but the Indians came back with the aid of homers by Ralph Kiner and Jim Hegon to take the nightcap. Mike Garcia won the nightcap while Herb Score suffered his eighth loss in the first game.

The Milwaukee Braves scored five unearned runs in the eighth inning to beat the New York Giants, 8-7, and then got nine-hit pitching from Chet Nichols to win the second game, 3-1. Joe Adcock hit two homers for the Braves and Del Crandall one in the opener to negate Wes Westrum's six runs batted in.

The Philadelphia Phillies handed the Chicago Cubs their sixth straight loss, 12-11, but trailed, 5-4, when the nightcap was suspended in the seventh inning. And the St. Louis Cardinals led, 1-0, behind Harvey Haddix when their second game was suspended in the eighth after they beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 9-8, in the opener of their doubleheader.

The United States' annual hay crop totals about 110,000,000 tons—equal to the nation's tonnage of steel.

KNOW SCORE—Herb Score pumps, releases the ball with a smooth overhand motion and it is in the catcher's glove by the time the major leagues' new strikeout king finishes his follow through. The Cleveland left-hander is exceptionally fast, but opposing batters say the curve is his best pitch.

Legion Downs

Uniontown, Ky.,
Merchants, 3-0

The Harrisburg Legion baseball team downed the Uniontown, Ky., Merchants Sunday afternoon by a 3-0 count on the losers' field.

Jim Nickles, a hard-throwing right hander, held the winners to a lone safety but, coupled with a base on balls and an error, netted the Legion two runs in the second inning which was enough for Bill McNew who was tossing for the Legion as he limited the losers to four hits in notching his fifth win and second shutout of the season.

The Legion's third run crossed the plate in the fourth inning on a walk, an error and a ground out. Frank Logsdon made one of the season's outstanding catches in centerfield on a terrific drive by French in the first inning. French then avenged himself by snaring a vicious drive off the bat of Logsdon in the fifth to rob Logsdon of a hit.

Carl Griffiths collected the only hit the Legion had. This came in the second inning.

Dick Romanosky was McNew's receiver while Heathcock caught for Uniontown.

Williams, Odle, Dallas, Hay and Miller all saw action for the Legion besides the players already mentioned.

So far the Legion has no game for next Sunday and any club in the vicinity wanting a game may contact Jim Hay or Karl Klondike before then.

Upland Game Regulations Changed in Revised Code Signed by Gov. Stratton

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Liberalized regulations concerning the taking of upland game were contained in the revised Game Code passed by the 69th General Assembly and signed into law this week by Governor William G. Stratton.

Director Glen D. Palmer, of the Department of Conservation, called the revisions another step in a long-range program designed to preserve and improve hunting in Illinois for years to come.

"Regulations must be sensible," Palmer explained, "in order to work for the best interests. The pheasant season, for example, has been extended five days for the simple reason that research has proven that Illinois can afford to harvest more cock birds."

New dates for hunting cock pheasants this coming season will be November 11 to 30 inclusive—five extra days. Hunting will begin at noon opening day and will be permitted from sunrise to sunset the balance of the 20-day season. The two day limit was retained.

Change Quail Season

Dates for hunting Bob White quail have been changed to permit a later start of the season, due to weather experiences in most of the quail range where hot days and heavy vegetation have impeded hunting.

The quail season in 1955 will be November 19 to December 19.

Middlecoff Wins Miller Open with 15 Under Par Score

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 16 — Cary Middlecoff said today he "wasn't looking forward to" the PGA golf tournament despite the "best 72 holes I ever played" in winning the $35,000 Miller Open.

Middlecoff came home 15 under par in 265 with a bevy of birdies—three of them in the last six holes—Sunday to overcome a double bogie and win first prize of $6,000 and a new automobile.

Ted Kroil of Utica, N. Y., Mike Souchak of Grossingers, N. Y., and Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N. C., tied for third with 269.

"That's a tough meet," Middlecoff said of the PGA tournament opening at Detroit's Meadowbrook Club Wednesday. "You have to play 36 holes seven straight days to win. No, I've never won it."

Middlecoff, former Memphis, Tenn., dentist playing out of Kiamisha Lake, N. Y., blistered 15 under par with rounds of 64-67-66-68 in the four-day meet which saw two new records and 128 sub-par rounds.

Jim Turnesa, 42-year-old veteran of the tournament circuit, broke the course record of 64 with a 63 in the second round. Inman Walker, Augusta, Ga., newcomer, shattered the back nine mark by one stroke with 28. Turnesa finished fifth in the tourney with 270.

Amateur Don Cherry of Wichita Falls, Tex., Mike Fetcheck of Lake Mahopac, N. Y., and Tommy Bolt of Chattanooga were one stroke back.

The winds on the west side of a tornado usually have less force than those on the east side.

Death Has 3 Lives

by Brett Halliday

XXI

Lucy went to the telephone and called police headquarters, explained what she wanted to know to the first voice that answered, and was switched to two other gruffly official voices before a member of the Harbor Squad supplied the information:

"Yes, ma'am. She'll be at the morgue pending identification or maybe an autopsy. You think you maybe know . . ."

"I'm not sure. It might be . . . my sister Maggie. I just don't know. I'm scared to death to go down there, but . . ."

"Nothing to be afraid of, Miss. It's your duty to go down and check." She listened silently while he gave her explicit directions as to the procedure so late at night, and thanked him for his courtesy after a time and hung up.

She had been told there would be an attendant on duty to assist her, and she stood hesitantly just inside the door, her heart beating rapidly and possessed by an intense desire to turn and flee from the place before anyone came to show her the body she feared might be Arlene.

A door in the rear opened as she stood there, and a heavily-built man wearing a gray suit and a gray felt hat emerged and strode toward her.

He didn't fit her idea of a morgue attendant, and she stepped aside from in front of the door, looking past him to see a small bald-headed man in shirtsleeves follow him through the door and turn to close it.

She took one step forward just as the man in gray reached her side. He stopped to stare at her in surprise, and exclaimed loudly, "I didn't know you were coming down too, my dear. It isn't Helen, thank God!"

He caught her arm and swung her about toward the door before Lucy could collect her wits and disclaim knowing him. His bulky body was between her and the attendant and he shouldered the door open while clamping a big hand lightly over her mouth and pushing her through it in front of him.

Crazed with fright, Lucy struggled and kicked to free herself, making gurgling sounds behind his tight palm, but they were going down the steps now and there was no one to observe what was happening.

A black, two-door sedan was parked at the curb, and he held her tightly with one arm about her neck and the hand still over her mouth as he jerked the door open and pulled the seat back.

Twisted upward as she was while still fighting to free herself, Lucy had her first clear look at his face. It seemed familiar, and the truth came to her with sickening force.

It was the man who had been in the gray sedan on the Causeway when she had tossed Michael Shayne's makeshift bomb into the front seat.

At the same moment, he deliberately swung a big fist against her right temple.

A loud gong sounded inside her head.

Lucy Hamilton swung back fuzzily to consciousness some time later. She had no way of knowing how much later. She had no idea where she was at first, or how she had got there. She was constricted in a narrow space, and in a moment or so she realized she must be on the floor in the back seat of a moving car.

Then, suddenly, she remembered everything.

Her head ached intolerably as she shifted position, reached out hands on either side to affirm her guess that she was on the floor in the back of a moving car.

She wasn't bound in any way. She had just been dumped in the back, unconscious, and he had driven away from the morgue with her.

He must have recognized her there at once, she thought. He had gotten a good look at her on the Causeway in the moonlight without any hat to hide her features.

Why had he grabbed her and rushed her out the door of the morgue before she could protest? Did he realize she was an old friend of Arlene Bristow's and that was why she had come? Was the dead woman Arlene, and did he have some reason for wishing her to remain unidentified?

She lifted herself on her elbows and gazed unhappily at the back of the driver's head silhouetted above and in front of her.

Other women in a similar position, she recalled, had been known to take off a shoe and knock a man out by socking him on the head with the heel of it. But she hadn't changed since her walk on the Causeway, and she was wearing the same sensible, rubber-heeled walking shoes she had selected for that jaunt.

The car was slowing more and more, and she strained her eyes to read the street names on corner posts as they slid past intersections.

The only thing she could read was Biscayne Blvd. on two successive corner signs as they passed. So, they were on the Boulevard traveling northward.

She was certain, now, that he was braking for a turn. She sat very tense on the floor with her head just below the level of the seat in front of her, straining her eyes out the window to catch the next street sign.

Saltair Street! It was completely unfamiliar to her. She hadn't the faintest idea where it was except she knew it must be near the northern limits of the city and right angles to the Boulevard.

Dies at Ridgway

Mrs. Docia Crayne, 72, died Saturday morning at her home in Ridgway.

When it comes to Protection . . . it pays to have the BEST

Here's a youngster who doesn't believe in taking chances. He's making sure his nickels, dimes and quarters will be there when he needs them.

Dependable insurance is like that, too. It's one thing you want to be sure of having when you need it most. After an accident or loss has occurred, it's too late to get better insurance if the policy you have proves unsatisfactory.

So don't gamble with "cheap" insurance. Buy only the BEST — and buy it today.
